Which way to go?

What happens after my PhD? Can a scientific career be planned at all? Or should I aim for a career in business or a non-profit career?

As a trained academic, you have excellent chances to go for a personalized professional career that provides long-term inspiration and satisfaction.

That is exactly why it is so important to plan your career strategically. Some important questions need to be answered: What are my goals and interests, what are my strengths and weaknesses? Where can I apply? Do I know what is expected of me and how I want to be perceived?

To help you address these questions, the Gutenberg Council of Young Researchers (Gutenberg Nachwuchskolleg, GNK) has set up a project on Career perspective for postdocs.

It is our goal to provide targeted coaching, advice and information that will help you make important decisions, that determine your career options and build a fitting profile.
